The Treasure of Truth

Baba: Mansoor, come here, my dear son. Let's sit under the shade of this tree. I want to share something precious with you.

Mansoor: Yes, Baba! What is it? Is it a story?

Baba: Indeed, it is a story. But it's not just any story. It's a treasure of truth from the Quran. Allah says:
"The truth is from your Lord, so never be among the doubters." (Surah Al-Baqara 2:147)
Do you know what this means?
Mansoor: Hmm… does it mean we should always believe in what Allah tells us?

Baba: Exactly! It means that Allah's words are the ultimate truth, and we must trust them with all our heart. Let me tell you about a boy named Haroon, who learned this in a special way.

Haroon was a curious boy, just like you. One day, he heard his friends saying, “The new moon is magic! It decides our fate!” Haroon felt confused. “But my Baba told me only Allah decides everything,” he thought.

That evening, Haroon rushed to his father and asked, “Baba, my friends said the moon has powers. Is that true?” His Baba smiled and said, “Haroon, Allah is the Creator of the moon. It shines because of His command, but it cannot control our lives.” Haroon nodded but still felt unsure.

The next night, there was a storm. Haroon’s friends ran to hide, shouting, “The moon is angry!” Haroon was scared but remembered his Baba’s words. He whispered, “Ya Allah, protect us.”

The storm passed, and the sky cleared. Haroon looked up at the moon and smiled. “It’s just a creation of Allah, like Baba said!” he thought. Haroon realized the truth in Allah’s words and felt his heart fill with peace.

The next night, there was a storm. Haroon's friends ran to hide, shouting, "The moon is angry!" Haroon was scared but remembered his Baba's words. He whispered, "Ya Allah, protect us."

The storm passed, and the sky cleared. Haroon looked up at the moon and smiled. "It's just a creation of Allah, like Baba said!" he thought. Haroon realized the truth in Allah's words and felt his heart fill with peace.

The next day, Haroon told his friends, "The moon doesn't control us. Only Allah does. Let's thank Him for keeping us safe." His friends listened and began to think about what Haroon said.

Mansoor: Wow, Baba! Haroon was brave to speak the truth.

Baba: Yes, my dear. Always remember, Allah's words are the greatest treasure. Keep them close to your heart, and they will guide you through every storm in life.

Mansoor: I will, Baba. Thank you for teaching me this beautiful story.
Baba: Alhamdulillah. May Allah always keep your heart full of truth and trust.

Race to Do Good

A peaceful evening at home. Mansoor and Baba are sitting together after dinner. Baba is reading the Quran, and Mansoor is curiously watching him.

Mansoor: Baba, what are you reading?

Baba: I’m reading a beautiful verse from the Quran, my dear. Would you like to hear it?

Mansoor: Yes, Baba!

Baba: Allah Subhanahu Wa Ta'ala says in Surah Al-Baqara:
"For each [religious following] is a direction toward which it faces. So race to [all that is] good. Wherever you may be, Allah will bring you forth [for judgment] all together. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.”

Mansoor: What does that mean, Baba?

Baba: It means that no matter where we are or what we do, we should always focus on doing good deeds. Allah wants us to compete in kindness, helping others, and making the world a better place.

Mansoor: Like a race?

Baba: Yes, but this race is special. It’s not about being faster or stronger than others. It’s about trying your best to please Allah by doing good things.

Mansoor: Can you tell me a story about this, Baba?

Baba: Of course. Once, there was a boy named Ahmed who lived in a small town. One day, his teacher announced a challenge: “Whoever does the most good deeds in a week will get a special prize.” Ahmed was excited and decided to do as many good deeds as possible.

He helped his mother by cleaning the house, shared his toys with his little brother, and gave some of his pocket money to a poor man he saw on the street. Every day, he tried to find new ways to help others.

Mansoor: What happened next, Baba?

Baba: Well, Ahmed had a friend named Sami who was also trying to win. At first, Ahmed thought, “What if Sami does more good deeds than me?” But then he remembered the verse I told you: “Race to all that is good.” He realized that the race wasn’t about beating Sami but about doing his best for Allah.

So, instead of competing against Sami, Ahmed decided to help him. They worked together to clean their school playground, visit an elderly neighbor, and feed some stray animals.

Mansoor: Did they win, Baba?

Baba: Yes, Mansoor, they both won! Their teacher said, “The real prize is the happiness you bring to others and the reward Allah will give you.” Ahmed and Sami were very happy because they learned that doing good is even better when you encourage others to join you.

Mansoor: I want to race to do good too, Baba!

Baba: That's wonderful, beta. Remember, Allah loves it when we help others and do good deeds with a sincere heart. Wherever you are, always look for ways to spread kindness.

Mansoor: I will, Baba. Tomorrow, I'll help Mama with the dishes and share my toys with my friends.

Baba: That's a great start, my dear. May Allah always guide you to do good.

Facing the Right Direction

It’s a quiet evening at home. Mansoor and his Baba are sitting in the garden, enjoying the cool breeze. Mansoor looks thoughtful.

Mansoor: Baba, why do we always face the Kaaba when we pray?

Baba: That’s a very good question, Mansoor. Allah Subhanahu Wa Ta'ala has commanded us to face the Kaaba, which is in Masjid al-Haram, when we pray. It’s a way of showing unity as Muslims, no matter where we are in the world. Let me share a verse from the Quran with you:
"So from wherever you go out [for prayer, O Muhammad], turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, and indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what you do." (Surah Al-Baqara, 2:149)

Mansoor: So, it’s not just a rule; it’s something special?

Baba: Exactly. Facing the Kaaba reminds us that we are all connected as Muslims, worshiping one Allah, no matter how far apart we are. Let me tell you a story about this.

Mansoor: A story? I love your stories, Baba!

Baba: Alright. There was once a boy named Zaid who loved praying, but one day, he got confused about which direction to face during prayer. His family had just moved to a new city, and he didn't know where the Kaaba was from their new home.

Zaid decided to guess and prayed facing a random direction. Later, his father explained that they could use a compass or ask someone to find the correct direction. Zaid felt bad for making a mistake, but his father reassured him.

Mansoor: What did his father say?

Baba: He said, “Allah knows your intention, Zaid. You didn’t mean to pray in the wrong direction. But now that you know, always make an effort to find the right way to face the Kaaba.”

Mansoor: Did Zaid learn to find the direction?

Baba: Yes! The next day, Zaid’s father showed him how to use a compass to find the Qibla. Zaid also learned to ask for help when he was unsure. From then on, he always checked carefully before praying.

Mansoor: Baba, what if I make a mistake like Zaid?

Baba: Allah is Most Merciful, my dear. If you make a mistake unintentionally, Allah understands. But we should always try our best to follow His guidance. Facing the Kaaba reminds us of our unity and helps us focus on Allah during prayer.

Mansoor: I understand now. I'll always check the direction carefully before I pray.

Baba: That's my boy. Remember, prayer is not just about facing the right direction; it's about turning your heart toward Allah too.

Mansoor: I'll remember that, Baba. Thank you for the story.

Baba: You're welcome, beta. May Allah guide you always.

Turning to the Right Direction

After Maghrib prayer, Mansoor and his Baba are sitting on a prayer mat in their living room. Mansoor looks curious as he watches Baba close the Quran.

Mansoor: Baba, why do we always face the Kaaba when we pray?

Baba: That’s a beautiful question, my dear. Facing the Kaaba is something Allah Subhanahu Wa Ta'ala has commanded us to do. Let me share a verse from the Quran with you:
"And from wherever you go out [for prayer], turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you [believers] may be, turn your faces toward it in order that the people will not have any argument against you, except for those of them who commit wrong; so don't fear them but fear Me." (Surah Al-Baqara, 2:150)

Mansoor: Does that mean we must always turn toward the Kaaba no matter where we are?

Baba: Yes, Allah wants us to face the Kaaba during prayer to show unity and obedience. It's a reminder that we all worship the same Allah, no matter where we are in the world. Would you like to hear a story about this?

Mansoor: Yes, Baba!

Baba: Once, there was a boy named Haris who loved praying at the mosque with his family. One day, while visiting another city, Haris and his family stopped to pray in a park. But Haris wasn't sure which direction the Kaaba was.

Mansoor: Oh no! What did he do?

Baba: Haris started to panic. He thought, “What if I face the wrong direction? Will my prayer still count?” Then, his father gently reminded him of what Allah says in the Quran: “So don't fear them, but fear Me.” His father explained that Allah knows what is in our hearts. If we try our best to follow His guidance, Allah will accept our efforts, even if we make a mistake.

Mansoor: That’s good to know, Baba. So, what happened next?

Baba: Haris remembered they had a Qibla app on his father’s phone. Together, they found the correct direction and prayed. Haris felt calm and focused because he knew he was obeying Allah’s command.

Afterward, his father said, “Haris, the most important thing is to trust Allah and do your best to follow His guidance. Facing the Kaaba reminds us to focus our hearts and minds entirely on Allah.”

Mansoor: That’s such a nice story, Baba. I want to be like Haris and always check the direction when I pray.

Baba: That’s wonderful, my dear. Remember, Allah loves those who try their best to obey Him with sincerity. Whether you are at home, school, or traveling, always take a moment to find the right direction for prayer.

Mansoor: I will, Baba. Thank you for teaching me.

Baba: You’re welcome, beta. May Allah always guide you and bless you.

The Messenger Among Us

Mansoor and his Baba are sitting on a wooden bench in the garden after Asr prayer. Mansoor is looking at the birds chirping in the trees, lost in thought.

Mansoor: Baba, why did Allah send prophets to us? Couldn’t He just tell us everything directly?

Baba: That’s a very thoughtful question, Mansoor. Allah Subhanahu Wa Ta'ala sent prophets to guide us, teach us, and show us how to live our lives in the best way. Let me share a verse from the Quran with you:
"Just as We have sent among you a messenger from yourselves reciting to you Our verses and purifying you and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know." (Surah Al-Baqara, 2:151)

Mansoor: So, the prophets teach us what we don’t know?

Baba: Exactly! Prophets like Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) were sent as teachers and role models. They not only delivered Allah's message but also showed us how to act on it in our daily lives. Let me tell you a story about a boy named Sameer who learned an important lesson from the life of our beloved Prophet.

Mansoor: I love stories about the Prophet, Baba! Please tell me.

Baba: One day, Sameer was at school, and he saw a younger boy struggling to carry his bag. Instead of helping him, Sameer ignored him and walked away. Later, when he got home, his mother shared a story about Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him).

She said, "One day, the Prophet saw an elderly woman carrying a heavy load. He immediately went to her and carried it for her. The woman didn't know he was the Prophet, but she was so impressed by his kindness that she later accepted Islam."

Mansoor: Wow! The Prophet always helped others, didn't he?

Baba: Yes, he did. Sameer felt ashamed after hearing this story. He realized he hadn't followed the Prophet's example. The next day, Sameer apologized to the boy and helped him carry his bag. He felt so happy afterward because he knew he was following the Prophet's teachings.

Mansoor: That's such a nice story, Baba. So, the Prophet's life is like a guide for us?

Baba: Absolutely, my dear. The Prophet taught us through his actions and words how to live in a way that pleases Allah. That's why it's important to learn about his life and follow his example.

Mansoor: I'll try to be like the Prophet, Baba. I'll help others and be kind, just like Sameer learned to do.

Baba: That's wonderful, beta. Remember, the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) was sent as a mercy for all of us. By following his example, we can become better Muslims and better people.

The Power of Remembrance

Mansoor and his Baba are sitting on a mat in their backyard, watching the sunset. Mansoor looks thoughtful as he twirls a leaf in his hand.

Mansoor: Baba, why do you always say "Alhamdulillah" and "SubhanAllah" so many times every day?

Baba: That’s a beautiful observation, beta. Saying these words is a way of remembering Allah. In the Quran, Allah says:
"So remember Me; I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me." (Surah Al-Baqara, 2:152)

Mansoor: Allah remembers us when we remember Him?

Baba: Yes, my dear. When we say "Alhamdulillah," we thank Allah for His blessings. When we say "SubhanAllah," we glorify Him. And when we say "Allahu Akbar," we acknowledge His greatness. Would you like to hear a story about a boy who learned the importance of remembering Allah?

Mansoor: Yes, please, Baba!

Baba: There was a boy named Umar who loved playing in the fields near his home. One day, while playing, Umar lost his favorite ball. He searched everywhere but couldn’t find it. Feeling sad, he sat under a tree and remembered something his grandmother had told him: "Whenever you need help, remember Allah and ask Him."

Mansoor: Did he remember Allah, Baba?

Baba: Yes, Umar folded his hands and quietly said, "Ya Allah, please help me find my ball." After his dua, he felt a sense of calm. Moments later, he spotted the ball stuck in some bushes nearby. Umar was overjoyed! He quickly retrieved it and said, "Alhamdulillah, thank You, Allah!"

Mansoor: Allah helped Umar because he remembered Him, right?

Baba: Exactly, beta. Allah loves it when we remember Him, not just in times of need but always. By saying "Alhamdulillah" for blessings, "SubhanAllah" for His perfection, and "Astaghfirullah" when we make mistakes, we stay close to Allah.

Mansoor: Baba, can I start remembering Allah like Umar did?

Baba: Of course, my dear. You can start by saying small phrases like "Bismillah" before eating or "Alhamdulillah" after finishing your meal. Remember, Allah listens to every word you say and loves to hear you call upon Him.

Mansoor: I'll try, Baba. I want Allah to remember me too!

Baba: That's wonderful, Mansoor. Always keep Allah in your heart, and you'll feel His blessings in every part of your life.

The Power of Patience and Prayer

It’s a sunny afternoon, and Mansoor is sitting on the porch, looking at his homework. He looks frustrated, his pencil tapping on the table. Baba walks by and notices his son’s expression.

Baba: Mansoor, why do you look so upset, beta?

Mansoor: Baba, this math homework is too hard! No matter how hard I try, I just don’t get it.

Baba: I understand, Mansoor. Sometimes things seem difficult, but do you know what Allah tells us in the Quran?

Mansoor: No, Baba. What does He say?

Baba: Allah says, “O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, Allah is with the patient.” (Surah Al-Baqara, 2:153). When we face challenges, we can ask Allah for help through patience and by praying.

Mansoor: Patience and prayer? But how does that help, Baba?

Baba: Let me tell you a story, Mansoor. Once, there was a young boy named Bilal who wanted to learn how to read the Quran, but he couldn’t understand the words at first. Every time he tried, he felt frustrated, just like you feel now with your homework.

Mansoor: Did Bilal get upset too, Baba?

Baba: Yes, he did, but Bilal didn't give up. Instead, he prayed to Allah, asking for help, and he practiced with patience. He didn't rush or feel discouraged. Day after day, he would pray and patiently continue learning. Slowly but surely, Bilal started to understand the words, and soon he could read the Quran fluently!

Mansoor: So, Bilal didn't give up? He kept praying and being patient?

Baba: Exactly, Mansoor. When things get tough, prayer and patience are like a shield. They help us stay calm and strong. Allah is always with the patient ones, and He will guide us through any difficulty.

Mansoor: I see, Baba. So, I should pray and stay patient with my homework?

Baba: Yes, beta. When you face a challenge, pray to Allah for help and remember to be patient. You will find that your effort and prayers will bring you success, just like Bilal.

Mansoor: I'll try, Baba. I'll pray and be patient with my homework!

Baba: I'm proud of you, Mansoor. Remember, Allah is always there to help you, and with patience and prayer, you'll find the strength to overcome any challenge.

The Heroes Who Live Forever

It’s a quiet evening, and Mansoor is sitting with his Baba in the garden. They’re watching the sunset together, and Mansoor seems a bit sad.

Mansoor: Baba, I heard some sad news today. A brave soldier who fought for our country passed away. Why does this happen?

Baba: Mansoor, I understand that you are feeling sad, but let me share something with you from the Quran. Allah tells us in Surah Al-Baqara, "And do not say about those who are killed in the way of Allah, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive it not." (2:154).

Mansoor: Wait, Baba. Allah says they are alive? But they are no longer with us. How is that possible?

Baba: Yes, Mansoor. Allah is telling us that those who sacrifice their lives for a good cause, like protecting others or defending the truth, are alive in a way that we don’t understand. Their sacrifice is not forgotten.

Mansoor: So, they are still alive with Allah, even though we can’t see them?

Baba: Exactly, Mansoor. Their actions are honored, and they are in a special place with Allah, where they will never feel pain again. We may not see them physically, but they are alive in Allah's care.

Mansoor: Baba, I understand now. It’s like when a tree grows tall and strong, even after the seeds are gone. The tree lives on, spreading its roots and branches.

Baba: That's a beautiful way to think about it, Mansoor. Just like that tree, the lives of those who sacrifice for a good cause continue to have an impact, and they will be remembered forever.

Mansoor: I'm not as sad now, Baba. I know they are in a better place, and we can remember them for their bravery.

Baba: Yes, Mansoor. Always remember that those who strive for a noble cause in the way of Allah will be rewarded with an eternal life far better than we can imagine.

Mansoor: Thank you, Baba. I'll remember them, and I'll try to be brave and kind, just like them.

Baba: That's the spirit, Mansoor. Always be strong and strive to do good in this life, for Allah is always with those who do good.

The Strength of Patience

It’s a sunny afternoon, and Baba and Mansoor are sitting under a tree in their garden. Mansoor looks a little worried about the changes happening around them.

Mansoor: Baba, I’ve heard people say that hard times are coming. Some of our neighbors have lost their jobs, and I’m worried. What will happen to us?

Baba: Mansoor, I understand your worries, but let me remind you of something Allah says in the Quran. He says, "And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient." (2:155).

Mansoor: So, Baba, you’re saying that hard times are actually a test from Allah?

Baba: Yes, Mansoor. Allah tests us in many ways—through fear, hunger, losing things, and even losing people we love. But He wants us to remember Him and be patient during these difficult times. Patience brings great reward.

Mansoor: But Baba, it's hard to be patient when I see people suffering. How can we be patient?

Baba: Being patient means trusting in Allah's plan, even when we don't understand it. It means not losing hope and continuing to do good deeds, even when things are tough. Allah promises to reward those who are patient.

Mansoor: So, if we stay patient and trust Allah, He will help us through these hard times?

Baba: Exactly, Mansoor. Allah is always with those who are patient, and He will guide us through every challenge. Patience doesn't mean we don’t feel sad or upset, but it means we keep our faith strong and trust that Allah will make things better.

Mansoor: I understand now, Baba. When we feel scared or worried, we should pray to Allah and be patient, knowing He will take care of us.

Baba: That’s right, Mansoor. Every challenge is a chance for us to grow stronger in our faith. Remember, no matter what happens, Allah is always with us, and He loves those who are patient.

Mansoor: I’ll try to be patient, Baba. And I’ll pray to Allah to help everyone who is struggling.

Baba: May Allah make it easy for you, Mansoor. Always keep your faith in Him, and remember, after difficulty comes ease.

Finding Peace in Times of Trouble

It's a rainy day, and Baba and Mansoor are sitting together inside their home. Mansoor is looking out the window, feeling sad after hearing about a friend's family who had lost their home in a flood.

Mansoor: Baba, I feel so sad. My friend Zain's family lost their house in the flood. They have nothing left. How can they be okay after something so bad happens to them?

Baba: I know it’s hard, Mansoor. But let me share something with you that Allah says in the Quran. He says, "Who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return.'" (2:156). This means that when something difficult happens, we remember that everything belongs to Allah, and we trust that He will guide us through it.

Mansoor: So, when something bad happens, we should say, "We belong to Allah," like my friend Zain’s family?

Baba: Yes, Mansoor. Saying this reminds us that Allah is the Creator of everything, and whatever happens is part of His plan. Even though it’s difficult, it helps us stay strong and patient. Everything in this world is temporary, and one day we will return to Allah.

Mansoor: But Baba, isn’t it scary to lose something you love? Zain’s family must be so sad.

Baba: Yes, Mansoor. It is natural to feel sad, and it’s okay to cry when we lose something important. But the key is to trust in Allah's plan. When we remember that everything belongs to Him, we find comfort in knowing that He will make things better for us. Sometimes, the test is hard, but it brings us closer to Allah.

Mansoor: I understand, Baba. So even though Zain’s family is going through a hard time, they can still find peace by trusting Allah?

Baba: Exactly, Mansoor. Patience, trust, and remembering that we belong to Allah can help us face any challenge. And Allah rewards those who are patient and turn to Him in times of difficulty.

Mansoor: I will remember that, Baba. Next time something bad happens, I will say, “We belong to Allah,” and pray for patience.

Baba: May Allah make it easy for you, Mansoor. Remember, after difficulty comes ease, and Allah is always there for those who turn to Him.
